

Nathaniel Cole

Nathaniel Cole is a native Washingtonian who is committed to community empowerment and youth development. Nathaniel graduated from the University of Maryland College Park in 2009 with a double major in Sociology and Communication. In 2011, he received his Master's degree in Public Administration from University of the District of Columbia. Nathaniel has worked with the Boys & Girls Club, YMCA DC Youth & Government Program, Men Can Stop Rape and other local youth serving organizations. Internationally, he worked in London for the City of Westminster's Children and Youth Services, allowing him to gain a wider perspective on youth programming and community development.

Nathaniel's experiences led him to establish N.OVATION, where he serves as a consultant and aims to empower communities by presenting innovative methods and strategies in addressing pressing issues. Nathaniel currently serves as DC Program Director for Urban Alliance, a national nonprofit organization that inspires youth to lead a life of self-sufficiency through paid internships and mentoring.
